In the last two decades childhood disorders including autism, ADHD, developmental and neuro-behavioral disorders have skyrocketed to epidemic proportions. Toxins and chemicals from the environment, genetic vulnerabilities, nutritional deficiencies and negative effects from traditional health care can converge to affect the body's biological functioning and systemic performance. In addition, intestinal pathogens, metabolic disorders, inadequate protein consumption, food allergies, gastro-intestinal disorders and enzyme deficiencies can also contribute to imbalanced brain chemistry and physical impairments.

This seminar will discuss a comprehensive treatment approach that integrates biomedical, nutritional and dietary interventions along with therapeutic modalities. Dr. Mañé, D.C. will also discuss the latest advancements in Hemispheric Integration Therapy (H.I.T.) with regard to ADHD and Autism Spectrum Disorders and how this treatment can dramatically improve the lives and well being of patients. Mañé's innovative therapy was recently featured on Tampa Bay, news Channel 8, www.tbo.com

Speakers

Dr. Nelson Mañé, D.C. of the Mañé Center is a board certified chiropractic physician in both chiropractic neurology and chiropractic orthopedics. Dr. Mañé has been in private practice as a primary care practitioner in Florida since 1985 and has additional sub-specialty training in childhood Neuro-Behavioral Disorders. Dr. Mañé is a frequent speaker to parents, professionals and support groups with respect to pediatric neurological, behavioral, and developmental disorders along with biomedical and nutritional interventions.

Christiane Gram is the mother of a child who has virtually recovered from autism. Her son Bobby displayed odd symptoms and numerous health issues within the first few weeks of life and deteriorated until age 2. Through biomedical and nutritional therapies she and her son have recovered from numerous disorders including autism, Tourettes, speech and developmental disorders, and clinical depression. Christiane works tirelessly to bring hope, healing, education and appropriate resources to parents who are trying to cope with their child's diagnosis and treatment, along with their own mental and physical health.
